A Message from Pastor Alex (and the late Paul Harvey)...

A few of you have asked me for a copy of the "Open Letter from God" by Paul Harvey that I read in my sermon on Sunday, March 11. Given that Passover begins on Good Friday this year and that our Jewish brothers and sisters will be worshipping the same God on the same holy day, I decided that I would share this with all of you as food for thought in the weeks ahead. Certainly, the notion of God wanting nothing more than for us to love one another is familiar to us Christians. We will hear that command from our Lord on Maundy Thursday with the story of Jesus washing the disciples' feet. That theme will also lead us right into Good Friday when we will behold the very definition of love as we stand together at the foot of the cross. "The rest of the story" as Mr. Harvey would say will come on Easter Sunday where joy, surprise, and new life await all of us.

As we continue our Lenten journey to Holy Week, may we keep our eyes on the destination and our hearts on Christ's command to love all of God's children. In the words of 1 John 4:19, "We love because he first loved us."

Peace +

Pastor Alex

An Open Letter from God

My Dear Children (and believe me, that is all of you),

I consider myself a pretty patient guy. I mean, look at the Grand Canyon. It took millions of years to get it right. And about evolution? Boy, nothing is slower than designing that whole Darwinian thing to take place, cell by cell and gene by gene. And I have been patient through your fashions, your civilizations, wars and schemes, and the countless ways that you take me for granted until you get yourselves into big trouble again and again.

I want to let you know about some of the things that started ticking me off. First of all, your religious rivalries are driving me up a wall. Enough already! Let's get one thing straight. These are YOUR religions, not mine. I'm the whole enchilada; I'm beyond them all. Every one of your religions claims that there's only one of me (which by the way, is absolutely true), but in the very next breath, each religion claims that it's my favorite one. And each claims its bible was written personally by me, and that all of the other bibles are man-made. Oh, me! How do I ever begin to put a stop to such complicated nonsense?

Alright, listen up now. I am your Father and Mother, and I don't play favorites among my children. Also, I hate to break it to you, but I don't write. My longhand is awful, and I've always been more of a "doer" anyway. So ALL of your books, including those bibles, were written by men and women. They were inspired men and women, they were remarkable people, but they also made mistakes here and there, and I made sure of that, so that you would never trust a written word rather than your own living heart.

You see, one human being to me -- even a bum on the street -- is worth more than all of the holy books in the world. That's just the kind of guy I am. My Spirit is not an historical thing; it's alive right now, right now, as fresh as your next breath. Holy books and religious rites are sacred and powerful, but they are not more so than the least of you. They were only meant to steer you in the right direction, not to keep you arguing with each other, and certainly not to keep you from trusting your own personal connection with me.

So I want you to stop thinking of religion as some sort of a loyalty pledge to me. The true purpose of your religions is so that YOU can become more aware OF ME, not the other way around! Believe me, I know you already. I know what's in each of your hearts, and I love you anyway with no strings attached. So lighten up and enjoy me. That's what religion's best for.

What you seem to forget is how mysterious I am. You look at the petty differences in your scriptures and you say, "Well, if this is the truth, then that can't be!" But instead of trying to figure out my paradoxes and unfathomable nature (which by the way, you never will), why not open your hearts to the simple common threads of every religion?

You know what I'm talking about: Play nice with each other. Love and respect everyone. Be kind. Even when life is scary or confusing, take courage and be of good cheer, for I am always with you! And learn how to be quiet, so that you can hear my still, small voice (I don't like to shout). Leave the world a better place by living your life with dignity and gracefulness, for you are my own child. Hold back nothing from life, for the parts of you that can die surely will, and the parts that can't, won't. So don't worry, be happy! (I stole that last line from Bobby McFerrin, but... who gave it to him in the first place?)

Simple stuff now. Why do you keep making it so complicated? It's like you're always looking for an excuse to be upset. And I am very tired of your main excuse. Do you think I care whether you call me God or Yahweh or Jehovah, Allah, Waka-tonka, Brahma, Father, Mother, even the Void of Nirvana? You can call me any name you choose, if only you will go about my business of loving one another as I love you. How can you keep neglecting something so simple?

No, I am not telling you to abandon your religions. Enjoy your religions, honor them, learn from them, just as you should enjoy, honor, and learn from your parents. But do you walk around telling everyone that your parents are better than theirs? Your religion, like your parents, may always have the most special place in your heart; I don't mind that at all! And I don't want you to combine all the great traditions into one big mess! Each religion is unique for a reason. Each has a unique style so that people can find the best path for themselves.

My blessed children of earth, the world has grown too small for your pervasive religious bigotries and confusion. The whole planet is now connected -- by air travel, satellite dishes, telephones, fax machines, rock concerts, diseases, and mutual needs and concerns. Get with the program! If you really want to help me, then commit yourselves to figuring out how to feed your hungry, and clothe your naked, and protect your abused, and shelter your poor. And just as important, make your own everyday life a shining example of kindness and good humor. I've given you all of the resources you need, if only you abandon your fear of each other and begin living and loving and laughing together.

Finally, my children everywhere, remember the fearlessness with which my Son Jesus chose to live and die. As I love Him, so do I love each of you. Now, I am not really ticked off. Not really. I just wanted to grab your attention because I hate to see you suffer! But I gave you free will, so what can I do now other than to try to influence you through reason, persuasion, and a little old-fashioned guilt and manipulation? After all, you know I AM the original Jewish Mother. I just want you to be happy... and I'll sit in the dark. I really am, indeed I swear, with you always. Always, trust in me.

Your One and Only,
God

ANOTHER YEAR OF ASHES TO GO!

On Ash Wednesday, February 14, Pastor Alex gave out ashes to about 60 people at the Lynbrook train station. Mother Lynn Collins from our neighboring church, St. John the Evangelist, joined Pastor Alex and the two of them gave “ashes to go” to those getting on the train (you can tell from the pictures that it was VERY early in the morning ☺). Make sure to look for Pastor Alex next year on Ash Wednesday, which will be March 6, 2019!

THANK YOU!

Many thanks to Janet Pescatore for baking the communion bread for our Sunday worship services throughout Lent!
